BRITAIN AND IRELAND

We go to Harlech in North Wales and have a lovely picnic on a different beautiful beach every day. As long as we have supplies of ham, rolls, cheese, pickle, salad and salami, we're happy.

- In Ireland, we stay at the Shelbourne hotel in Dublin for old-fashioned glamour, or at the g Hotel in Galway for the best spa. Sometimes we just rent a car at the airport, head west or south and stop at B&Bs along the way. Our routine is lunch at the Ballymore Inn, outside Naas, and endless cups of tea everywhere we go.
- Layers are what you need to counter our changeable weather. I pack shorts, a well-cut cotton dress and some pretty cardigans.
- Our holidays are essentially about having a quiet, relaxing time and making sure the children are happy. It's all about tiring them out – and ourselves in the process.
